Shelburne Craft Fair set Aug. 18-20

SHELBURNE — The Shelburne Craft Fair will begin its 17th season Aug. 18-20 at Shelburne Farms.

The Shelburne Craft School, offering summer and after-school programs for children, is dedicated to arts education, while Craft-producers Markets, creators of The Church Street Festival of the Arts, is an organization of more than 100 stockholder members most of whom are professional artists and craftspeople, is committed to the promotion of fine crafts. The aggregate experience of the two organizations creates an elegant and polished show.

Last year 7,600 craft aficionados flocked to the show last year, breaking all previous attendance records, and the fair has expanded to 130 exhibitors.

Handmade paper collage, portrait photography, blown glass table ware, sculptural wood turnings, precious metal jewelry, and tailor-made fashions are among the many crafts available. These craft designers have been selected by a jury of professionals and competition for acceptance into the show is such that there is an extensive waiting list.
