More than 25 years ago, when he was a young boy, Ammonig played the organ and sang in church. "It was a real spiritual thing," he says, "but I was never serious about it."

On the other hand, Ammonig's love for music began in his childhood, when he started playing the piano and singing in church. "I was always into music," he says. "I loved it from the moment I started playing the piano and singing in church. It was a real spiritual thing, but I was never serious about it."

Ammonig's love for music led him to a career in music. He played in various bands and worked in record stores. "I was always into music," he says. "I loved it from the moment I started playing the piano and singing in church. It was a real spiritual thing, but I was never serious about it."
